We at GMCClinics understand every single step in providing a quality service that our patients expect from us and therefore, our staff is dedicated to pay excellent attention to detail. We do respect our patients' privacy and as a consequence, we have a special healthcare approach which is captured in our vision of great people, great service and great outcomes.

I believe that people are any organization's greatest asset and so the leadership of our people is vital. Our roles therefore are very important because it is our responsibility, as a higher management, to inspire our teams to be the best they possibly can be, both in what they are doing currently and toward what they aspire to do in the future.

The key word for me is 'inspire' – inspiration is about ensuring that we all have a completely clear understanding about what needs to be done and what is expected of us and then as leaders, to empower the people in our teams to meet, and where possible, exceed those expectations.

To inspire is different than to motivate – motivation comes from within each individual; to inspire is to harness and bring that motivation to life, making people want to do something because they feel moved to do so. I look forward to sharing our motivation and passion for what we do so that together we can ‘go beyond expectations
